

Design Award of the Federal Republic of Germany Outstanding Design

Once a year the council of art and design of the German government honors outstanding product design. The award is the highest German award for design.

Sometimes less is more: That is how the new model C 116 Modern, designed in cooperation with two designers, makes a statement. The first instruments of this style were made in the early 20th century. New production methods and materials – such as the aluminum which forms a counterpart of the polished ebony finish – and the absolute reduction to a minimum create the feeling of purism. The focus on the vertical line lets this model seem to be much taller than it is.
